

Conclusion: There is one type of causation in the world, and this is constant in the natural world and in Human Nature

```
graph TD; A[Conclusion: There is one type of causation in the world, and this is constant in the natural world and in Human Nature] --> B[We have evidence for causation in the external world: "objects followed by another and where all the objects similar to the first are followed by objects similar to the second" (E 7.29) (constant conjunction and customary inference from one to the other)]; A --> C[We have the same type of evidence for causation between motives and actions - the consistency of humankind.]; A --> D[Any irregularities in the constant conjunction of motives and action amongst men can be explained by hidden causes.];
```

We have evidence for causation in the external world:
"objects followed by another and where all the objects similar to the first are followed by objects similar to the second" (E 7.29)
(constant conjunction and customary inference from one to the other)

We have the same type of evidence for causation between motives and actions - the consistency of humankind.

Any irregularities in the constant conjunction of motives and action amongst men can be explained by hidden causes.